

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A fishing rod support includes a restriction member configured to receive a portion of a fishing rod, wherein the restriction member is configured to substantially restrict rotational movement of the rod about a substantially vertical axis passing through the rod portion. The support is also provided 5 with a retaining member configured to releasably inhibit vertical movement of the rod portion.